

THE CENTRAL RECORD.

PURE RELIGION, UNBARNISHED DEMOCRACY AND GOOD GOVERNMENT.

LANCASTER, KY., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 16, 1914.

NUMBER 41.

We are a few steps from the square--Big money for you to take them. . . .

Our present location enables us to sell goods than if we were located on the square.

By your co-operation we shall make this the banner year in our business and will enable us to continue selling goods on a closer margin. Thanks for the past favors. Remember our motto:

"LIVE AND LET LIVE."

CONN BROTHERS.

Lancaster, Ky.

Had you observed that our streets were a little muddy?

Spain is busy building a new navy. Doubtless it will take better care of it than it did the old one.

Mexicans have abandoned bull fighting for killing each other. Hard to say whether it's progress or retrogression.

The new Legislature might introduce a bill making it a felony for men to stick their eyes into women's protruding hat feathers.

One of our subscribers complains that our paper is too large, that he doesn't get through reading one issue before it's out again.

Gov. McCreary's message to the Legislature is a plea for economy. We hope it will be heeded as we have a large debt and "every little helps".

One of the most concise and meaty prayers ever offered was that of an earnest New England deacon. "Lord, give us grace to know Thy will and grit to do it."

Congressman Owsley Stanley has done a greater service to the people in arresting the progress of trusts than any other public man of today and on this account he has endeared himself to the people.

Washington society has tired of the tango and other modern dances and turned to the "double shuffle". This variation of old-fashioned negro dance, which has enlivened many a cabin now appears in the fashionable drawing room.

Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner was born in 1823 on the farm where he died and during his long career he was a soldier in Mexico, an officer in the Confederate army, Governor of his native State and the nominee of the National Democratic party for Vice President of the United States.

There will be vast improvements in Eastern Kentucky this year along the line of educational advancement, school building, etc., as great interest is manifested. As a result a large number of buildings will be constructed and a number of high and graded schools established.

The probability of a primary to settle the Lexington postmasterhip has developed quite a number of prospective candidates who are disposed to contest with the Hon. Moses Kaufman right to this juicy plum, and several of these have already gone to work soliciting the support of friends to further their ambition along this line, it is stated.

Leave orders for Magazines at Stormes Drug Store.
Mrs. Dolly Brown.

To Be Regretted.

It is to be regretted that some of our good friends in the Legislature, both Democratic and Republican, so hastily accepted the unconstitutional method of making "places," which was agreed by the House. The condition of State finances at this time requires that the "economy" program be employed in other ways than merely playing to the galleries.

Facts And Figures.

Fond of facts and figures? then ponder over this a bit: The United States spends twelve million a year on foreign missions, thirteen million on chewing gum, eighty million on patent medicines, ninety million on millinery, a hundred million on tea and coffee, two hundred million on confectionery, eight hundred million on jewelry ornaments and two million good sound "Iron men" on booze!

Why Is This Not Done.

Says the Clay City Times: "Talk about taxation and classification, the state debt, etc., is all tommyrot. If we had the right kind of legislators, a stop could be put to all this in less than sixty days, by putting the tax equal. Take whiskey for an example. In a barrel of whiskey there is at least forty gallons, the real value of which is never less than two dollars per gallon or $80 per barrel. This liquor is taxed on a uniform assessment of $10 per barrel when it should be $64. This increase would be sufficient to wipe out the debt and harm no one. Why is this not done? The more we see of politics the more we tire of it."

A Good Law And Should Be Enforced.

The Kentucky game law was enacted to protect the game animals from useless slaughter, especially during the breeding season. If every person had voluntarily observed nature's law for the perpetuation of game animals, there would have been no necessity for statutory enactment to force people to do so. All the game animals are used for food, but before the law prohibiting their wanton destruction thousands of them were killed every year that were not used for food at all. The game wardens say that there are some who are very determined in their opposition to the game law, which is to be regretted, because the law is intended for the benefit of all the people, and it can not be so unless enforced.

The Governor, in his message, suggests "economy;" but retrenchment not at all. On the contrary, he asks that $20,000 be appropriated to complete his marble mansion (which has already exceeded the sum appropriated by the last Legislature by that figure at least), and that an appropriation be made to show us off at San Francisco next year.

Change Of Offices.

Ex-County Attorney J. E. Robinson has moved his office from the county building to rooms over the Central Record building on Richmond street, and Hon. Green Clay Walker, the newly elected County Attorney has moved into the rooms vacated by Mr. Robinson.

Busy At Court House.

The first session of the Quarterly court convened on last Tuesday and Judge Arnold presided with as much grace and dignity as if such had been his lifetime work. The Board of Supervisors are in session, struggling with the Assessors reports thus seeking to equalize the taxes of the county.

Ford Knocks The Plum.

Senator James, according to the daily press has decided upon R. C. Ford of Middlesboro for the Eastern Kentucky Marshalship, and his name will go to the Senate within the week for confirmation, which of course means that Mr. Ford will have the office, as Mr. James' recommendations are invariably confirmed.

Senator Bradley Enters Law Partnership.

"Bradley, Thatcher & Dearing" is the firm name that will grace the door plate of one of the strongest law firms in Louisville, or we might say in the entire country. The new firm is composed of our own Senator William O. Bradley, Col. M. H. Thatcher and Judge W. G. Dearing, the latter two being among the best known and most able attorneys in the state, while the ability of Senator Bradley is too well known to need comment.

Demand Long Sheets And Clean Towels.

Traveling men of Kentucky will make a fight before the session of the General Assembly, which will convene next week, for a hotel inspection bill, requiring hotels to observe rules regarding the comfort and health of their guests, as to change of bedclothing, length of sheets, condition of towels, etc. This law is most urgently demanded by the traveling men, who make the smaller towns, where competition does not automatically bring about reforms for the benefit of guests. Representatives of the traveling men are in Frankfort urging members of the legislature to vote for their bill.

Our New Home.

The CENTRAL RECORD has broken up house-keeping on Danville St. and is now at home to its friends on Richmond St. We have moved lock, stock and barrel and we want to say to you, you may have moved and moved but unless you have moved a printing office, count it as nothing. The last thing that came down the steps was the old printing press. We could not but feel sad as we left our old quarters and saw the old press torn down, the press that has announced the birth of so many children, now grown up, married and with children of their own. The grim Reaper has been busy too, and this old press has recorded many tears shed over open graves. It has recorded your joys when wedding bells have rung and smiled again as it recorded the school and graduating exercises of so many. For years it has told of your good qualities and good deeds and left untold most of your bad qualities and bad deeds. So if you do not feel like shedding a tear with us over what it has told, you can, at least, smile with us over what it has not told. We will see that the new press is just as kind to you as the old one was.

Our Honor Roll.

Our Subscribers have been so liberal with their renewals for the past week, we have decided to start an honor roll and publish each week the names of those who have honored us with their subscriptions. The expense that we have incurred in moving our plant has been enormous and those dollars look like twenty dollar gold pieces to us now. One dollar may seem little to you but when you think of our twenty five hundred subscribers, you can readily see how the amount would help us out. Please examine your label and if in arrears won't you get on the honor roll by sending us that dollar. The following helped us out last week:

Miss Allie Brown,	J. H. Clark,
Milton Sneed,	W. L. Scott,

Getting Well. Mr. Napoleon Walker, of Garrard county, who became so ill here last week that he was forced to undergo an immediate operation, is doing nicely and will soon be restored to health.—Advocate.

At a meeting of the Louisville Medical Club several members arranged severely the Board of Public Safety, Health Officer Grant and the medical department of the University of Louisville.

The creation of a standing House Committee on Woman Suffrage loomed up when Chairman Henry, of the Rules Committee, announced his conversion to the proposition upon which his committee must act.

Progressive School People.—Buena Vista, ten miles from Danville in the northern edge of Garrard county, has come to the front for progressive methods in school work. Three large omnibuses have been purchased and the smaller children are carried to and from school daily.—Advocate.

Poinexter Here.—Mr. C. K. Poinexter, the prominent Marcellus citizen was a visitor in Danville yesterday. He was a guest of Judge Charles A. Hardin at the Gilcher House. Mr. Poinexter is one of the best posted politicians in his section and stated to the Advocate reporter that much interest is being aroused in the senatorial race.—Advocate.

Mona Lisa has gone back home, the historic oil painting, "The Signing of the Emancipation Proclamation" in the capitol at Washington has been treated to a bath, the Lancaster club has been meeting and each one told their favorite picture. From Los Angeles, California, comes this note:

"If this tango thing keeps on," remarked a young man at the Mason Theater last night as he watched couples from the audience dancing in the foyer between acts, "the street car lines will soon be carrying tango cars in which couples can dance on their way home from work."

Los Angeles had its first between-the-acts tango last night at the opening night of May Irwin's farce. The foyer of the Mason was turned into a ballroom, and when the curtain descended on the first and second acts the audience rose and put on a show of its own. Society was well represented. The "dancettes" will be continued throughout the week.

Why The Bills Pile Up.

Every little legislator,
Wants a bill all his own,
Every little politician
Wants to show how he has grown,
Every little representative,
Wants to help dish out the pie,
That is why the legislature
Piles up useless bills so high.

Bills Galore.

Tuesday was "bill day" in the Kentucky legislature, and being the first opportunity of the session for the introduction of prospective measures, the downpour was terrific. In the House ninety nine measures were offered for the proposed government of the people of the state, the great majority of which will be lost in committee rooms, or ultimately reach the waste basket. Mr. Mount of Garrard offered his initial bill, which was one to change the court calendar of the thirteenth judicial district. Only three bills were offered in the Senate.

Start Movement For Monument To Cos Million To Memory Of Andrew Jackson.

A movement to build a million dollar monument in Nashville to the memory of Andrew Jackson, the seventh president of the United States, and hero of the battle of New Orleans, was formally started at a banquet in Nashville celebrating the thirtieth anniversary of the battle.

RESOLUTIONS FOR EXTRA HELP PASSED First One Defeated But The Second One Passes.

Representative Reed, of Mason, introduced a substitute for the resolution introduced the day before which provides for the following extra help.

Four doorkeepers, at $4 each per day; one gallery doorkeeper, at $4; one stenographer to the Chief Clerk, at $5; three stenographers to the House members, at $5 each; one bill clerk, at $4; two mail clerks, at $2.50 each; five messengers, at $2 each; one porter at $1.50; one copyist, at $5; two messengers for committees, at $2.50 each; one messenger for Speaker, at $2.50; two assistants to bill clerk, at $5 each; one assistant to enrolling clerk, at $4.

So the economy train was wrecked before it reached the first station.

Every Legislator Will Want To Pass A Little Bill All His Own.

We cannot blame every Legislator from trying to pass a "little bill all his own", for we know it pays to advertise and how would we ever know some were there unless they became father of a law? We know the temptation is great and it is not to be doubted that the present members will produce the usual crop of useless bills. However if the legislators would not be in too big a hurry to advertise themselves and wait until some good bill came along and then give it their unqualified support they would honor themselves and the county which they represent.

We do not need half the laws we have now, but the enforcement of a few good ones instead of adding several hundred pages to the already overburdened statute book.

Garrard's Representative Fares Well On The Various Legislative Committees.

The assignment of the members to the various committees necessary to the conducting of the business of the Kentucky legislature was made public on last Monday and the list shows Garrard's member, Hon. J. R. Mount, to have fared exceedingly well. He was made Chairman of the Committee on Railroads, one of the most important assignments given out, and a position to which Mr. Mount is peculiarly fitted. He is also a member of the Ways & Means, another important committee and also the Printing, Executive, Cities of the 5th, and 6th, class and the committee on Alcoholic Liquor.

Banks Re-elect Officers.

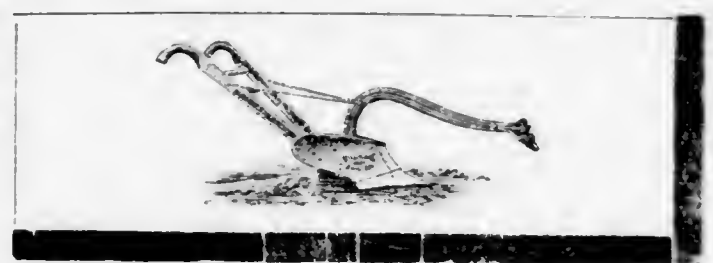

All officers were re-elected at a meeting of the stockholders of the different banks here last Tuesday. They also endorsed Louisville as a Regional Bank Reserve, with Cincinnati as their second choice.

The Citizens Bank re-elected the following officers: B. F. Hudson, President, J. J. Walker, Vice Pres., W. F. Champ, Cashier, W. O. Rigney, Ass't. Cashier, Joe J. Walker, Book Keeper, Directors, B. F. Hudson, S. L. Gibbs, J. J. Walker, T. M. Arnold, C. A. Arnold, Shirley Hudson.

The National Bank re-elected its old officers which are as follows: A. R. Denny, President, J. E. Stormes, Vice President, S. C. Denny, Cashier, R. T. Embury, Ass't Cashier, J. L. Gill, Book Keeper, Directors; S. D. Cochran, A. R. Denny, J. H. Posey, J. E. Stormes, S. C. Denny, J. L. Gill, Dr. W. M. Elliott.

The Garrard Bank and Trust Co. made no change in their officers or directors and are: R. E. McRoberts, President, Alex Walker, Vice Pres., J. W. Elmore, Cashier, W. H. Hopper, Ass't Cashier, Russell Brown, Book Keeper. The directors of this bank are: R. E. McRoberts, Alex Walker, T. J. Price, J. H. Dalton, V. A. Lear, W. H. Brown, W. R. Cook, F. B. Marksbury, J. E. Robinson.

PROFIT BY GOOD CARE

Poultry on the Farm Receives Indifferent Treatment.

Close Watch Should Be Kept on Business All Round and Every Comfort Provided to Prevent All Infectious Disease.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

No matter how good the stock may be if they have not the proper care they will pay you no better than mongrels. Poultry on the farm, as a rule, receives indifferent treatment.

What does "care" mean? It means a close watch on the business all round. It provides every comfort, prevents disease by keeping the premises perfectly clean, never overcrowds, and keeps the fowls busy, sorts out the drones and gives the workers better attention. In short, "care" means using business principles in every sense of the word.

The farmer is not giving the proper care when he allows his fowls to roost on trees, in wagons, wagon sheds, or on the board fences. The proper care is not given if the appetites and conditions of the fowls are not studied.

System and regularity play an important part in care. Economy in labor, the saving of steps, the saving of muscles, the saving of time—all are important.

Shiftlessness causes expensive experiences. There is sure to be profit in anything we take care of. Success is accorded to management. Profits depend upon the quality and quantity of brain work put into the enterprise.

If a man performs his work in a mechanical way he will not be apt to do it well. There are too many who go by "luck." They do not stop to think. They do not take notice of the little matters. They are always hurrying to get done.

It is said quality makes prices, but it costs considerable labor and brains to make quality. Good management curtails expense. Successful poultrymen use good common sense methods, some others but little method, and alas, some not any method at all.

Hard luck is generally brought about by mismanagement. Disorder creates disgust. Study and care, and not luck and big talk, are the elements of success.

To quote Judge Brown: There are too many poultrymen who let their enthusiasm go down as the mercury in the thermometer goes up or down. The men who make the marked success in poultry raising are those who never flag in their attention, those who know that the increased labor and close attention hot weather brings must be religiously observed, the same being the case when the cold weather is with us. It is the man or woman behind the hen rather than the breed that brings success.

Scrutiny treatment will bring about scrub results. The best paying breed is the one that is best cared for. Zeal in the prosecution of the work should be the characteristic of every poultry breeder.

In conclusion, it must not be forgotten that success depends on management. Business attention given to flock of properly housed hens would be a revelation to many, especially to the farmers themselves.

TO AVOID STRAWBERRY LOSS

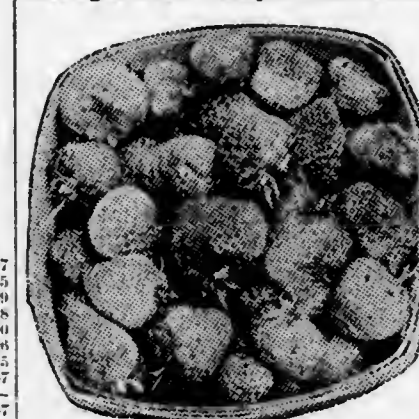

Plants, According to Wisconsin Expert, Should Be "Heeled-In" by Being Set in Sheltered Spot.

(By PROF. J. G. MOORE, Wisconsin College of Agriculture.)

Failure to get a good stand of strawberries may often be traced to neglect of the plants when they arrived from the nursery, as plants arriving in perfect condition may be ruined by careless handling before planting.

Packages of strawberry plants should be opened as soon as received, and the plants "heeled-in" by being set in soil in a location protected from sun and wind.

Heeling-in is accomplished by spading up the soil, pulverizing it, and making a broad V-shaped trench about eight inches deep. The trenches are then distributed along the trench just far enough apart to allow the root system of each to come fully in contact with the soil. The trench is then refilled and the soil compressed, care being taken that the crowns are not covered nor the upper parts of the roots exposed. Plants may be kept in this way for some time without being injured. Varieties should be labeled properly.

A few coals from the wood fire of the kitchen put into the houses now and then, where the hogs can grind them up to charcoal, help to keep the hogs healthy.

SHELTER FOR EARLY CHICKS

Warm, Comfortable Quarters Are Essential for Success With Young Birds—Brooding Is Neglected.

Don't try to raise early chicks unless you have a place to properly care for them. It is a waste of time and money. A good many think if they can hatch the chicks, brooding them is a small matter. Such is not the case. Brooding the early chicks successfully is a subject that needs more attention than is usually given it. Hatching early chicks is comparatively easy.

To artificially brood the early hatched chicks successfully, warm, comfortable quarters that are not subject to sudden change of fitful winter and early spring weather must be provided. More people fail in the brooding than in the hatching, and no doubt for the reason stated. Give the brooding more attention and see if the result will not be better.

Good Winter House.

LAWFUL WEIGHT OF APPLES

Lawyer, One of the Heaviest Varieties Grown, Is About Only One to Reach Fifty Pounds.

Some states have passed laws fixing the legal weight of a bushel of apples at 50 pounds, but not a great many varieties will reach this weight. The inspector of weights and measures, Madison, Wis., weighed a number of varieties and found that the varieties weighed as follows:

Some Good Apples.

Snow	30 1/2
Talman Sweet	30 1/2
20-Dance Pippin	40
Wealthy	42
McMahon	40 1/2
Jonathan	41 1/2
Round Sweet	42 1/2
Ben Davis	41 1/2
Hyslop Crab	46 1/2

The average weight for these varieties is a trifle over 42 pounds.

From this statement it would appear that about the only variety that will weigh full 50 pounds will be the Lawyer, which is one of the heaviest apples grown.

STORE MANURE FOR GARDENS

Fertilizer Should Be Kept in Large Box With Lid Screened That Flies Cannot Possibly Enter.

A common practice is to manure the garden every year late in the fall or before planting in the spring, no further attention being given. This practice, however, is not the best.

The manure for the garden should be kept in a large box with a lid or so screened that flies cannot enter it. Manure heaps are the natural breeding places of these pests, and if they are allowed to remain near the house uncovered will prove a great nuisance.

A good plan is to use a very close wire screen nailed to a frame with hinges for the top. The manure should be spaded onto the top so that the water from the clouds or the sprinkling pot may penetrate to every part of it.

If kept in a box a spout should be placed in one corner at the bottom, so that the water may drain into a sunken harrel.

This will supply liquid manure, which can be used at all seasons when vegetables and flowers are growing.

Good and Bad Cows.

One of the commonest blunders the farmer makes is that of keeping what he considers to be good dairy cows, when, if he would keep a close record of them, he would find that they are barely paying for their feed, to say nothing of their care.

Will Make Cows Thrifty.

Cooked roots, mixed with wheat bran or ground oats or barley occasionally will go a long way in making a better and more thrifty cow.

Wildest Excitement Among Growers That Has Prevailed Since Opening Day.

SOME BIG AVERAGES ARE MADE.

The wildest enthusiasm prevailed on the breaks of the People's Tobacco Warehouse this morning during the progress of the big sale. Every available space was occupied by enthusiastic sellers and enthusiasm prevailed as never before. Hundreds of tobacco growers from the five surrounding counties were on the floors and they went away in high spirits over the splendid prices that were realized. The tobacco market has opened in earnest in Danville and the People's House is the scene of high prices and satisfied sellers. Below are given some of the grand averages that were received over the breaks at the People's Tobacco Warehouse:

To The Tobacco Growers of Garrard and adjoining Counties:

We have just closed another successful week with a market congested for half of the week, yet prices have remained strong through it all. We sold over our floor during the week just closed 464,000, and daily average of nearly 93,000 pounds, and a general floor average for the entire week of $13.25, which we feel sure is the best general floor average had in the State. Taking everything into consideration, the buyers have handled the tobacco sold over this market well and even when all houses were congested, these excellent buyers kept the market right up to its usual high prices, for which we and you feel most grateful. That we have the best market in Richmond no one will question, and the Madison House, "The Pioneer" still leads in prices and pounds, and she hopes to continue to do so.

The following are among the best sales of the week and these have been taken at random, as we have gone along. There are many others just as good. Ask the man who sold with us.

Zack Simpson, Garrard County, sold 335 lbs. at 17 cts, 210 lbs. at 18 cts, 455 lbs. at 20 cts, 225 lbs. at 21 cts, and 250 lbs. at 20 cts, general average of nearly $20. per hundred. Gibbs & Lear Garrard County, 2560 pounds at an average of $18.50, one basket of this bringing 25 cts, Gully & Reynolds, 3555 lbs at general average, of $18.30. Asbie Sebastian, Garrard Co, 3500, pounds at general average, $16.00. James Richardson, Estil Co, sold 1100, pounds average $17.90. Hickum Brothers, Madison Co, sold 3430, pounds at general average, $17.26. Henderson & Dawson, Madison Co, 1390, at average $18.00. Million & Long Madison Co, 5920 lbs at $16.55 per hundred.

We are proud of this weeks record, which is remarkable, when for the first or second time our House was congested. We wish to thank those who waited patiently for us to unload them, and to say to those of our friends who went elsewhere for the reason they could not wait, that we appreciate their interest just the same and that next time we will be prepared to unload them earlier.

Finally we wish to say, that we only deal in facts not in fancies, we get our records from our books, not from other and less reliable quarters. We have every reason to believe that the week just ahead of us will excel even the high water mark that we have reached in prices thus far.

Thanking you once again. We are very gratefully.

The Womans Club

(Edited By The Womans Club)

At a meeting of the Outdoor Art League, of Louisville, the address of Mrs. M. A. Harrison, of Lexington, on "Woman's Political Duty" was said to be of a high order. Mrs. Harrison has been heard often in Lancaster and those who have heard her, know her to be a forceful and entertaining speaker.

The Woman's Club at Harrodsburg is always conspicuous among the federated clubs because in its membership are women who have led in the State work. It has furnished two Federation presidents beside other officers and chairmen.

It is fortunate at this time in having Mrs. Letcher Riker, State president 1905-1907, as chairman of its department of literature. She presented a very enjoyable program at the club meeting last Friday. The chief features were a lecture by Dr. John C. Acheson, of Danville, on "Ireland in Song and Story," and the singing of Irish ballads by Miss Sue Dalton.

The library directors, eighteen women and the housekeepers' section have been entertained during the holidays by Mrs. Alfred Curvey, who is president of the Woman's Club.

With more than thirty federated clubs in Louisville, and every town of any importance enjoying at least one club, the casual observer might be led to say "enough". However, when it is considered that many of them are limited in membership and that scores of the women are "repeaters" belonging to several clubs—it will be seen that club business is not overdone. Indeed, until all our women are brought in touch with the club movement, there will always be a demand for more organization or larger memberships in those already existing. One is led to wish that the splendid programs prepared for the club meetings, the rich mental pabulum, as well as the illuminating civic messages, might be more widely enjoyed.

From what follows it may be seen that with the new year there has been no diminution, but rather an increase, in the excellence of the program rendered throughout the state.

The problem of securing pure food in "this era of canned goods and ready made meals" was discussed by Mrs. H. L. Maury in a paper on "Food Sanitation" before the Civic League of Louisville. The question, she declared, is not a simple one. The market is so overcrowded with adulterated goods and one has such poor means to ascertain if pure supplies are used, the speaker said, that even with the help of pure food labels one is often at loss.

"Of what use is it to insist on screened meat stands if the delivery wagon is not screened and if the meat is exposed to the air from the time it leaves the abattoir until it reaches the place of distribution?" Mrs. Maury asked. "Have we any means of being sure that the bakery boxes are clean, even if the bread is wrapped? How do we know in what cellars the fruit we buy has been ripened."

The Department of Music of the Woman's Club of Lexington at its meeting on Tuesday evening at the Arts Clubs auditorium gave an unusually enjoyable programme. Miss Catherine Cochran, the popular teacher, choir director and singer, was chairman, and the program was arranged by Mrs. T. L. Dantzer, who returned from several years study abroad last summer, and whose beautiful contralto voice is adding much pleasure to concerts and recitals here this winter. The two instrumental numbers from Liszt and Wagner-Liszt were rendered by Miss Katherine Peter, a promising young pianist. Miss Carolyn Goff, who has had several years' special work in voice training at Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. sang three numbers, and Prof. Alfred Zembrod, head of the Department of Languages at State University, and who is a favorite in Lexington musical circles, gave great pleasure by his rendition, in perfect German and beautiful voice some of Schumann's songs.

We could go on and on giving interesting programs rendered throughout the state, and when all were given we dare say to more interesting or more helpful meeting would be recorded than the one given in the Lancaster Woman's Club room last Thursday afternoon.

Miss Sallie Elkin handled her subject, "The Child in Art", in a masterful way. She used a black board in dividing and sub-dividing her subject. The six divisions were: 1. "Childhood of the ideal type, with Sir Joshua Reynolds and familiar pictures, "Age of Innocence", "Simplicity", "Strawberry Girl" and "Angel Heads" coming first. Her other divisions were (2) Children born to the purple, (3) Children of the Field and Village, (4) Child-life in the Streets, (5) Child Angels, (6) Christ-child. Under each division she named the most noted artist and his pictures. Miss Elkin had also ordered foreign post cards, reproductions of these pictures, which together with the blackboard will make it a meeting that will linger always in ones memory. Miss Martha Kavanaugh's paper on "Madonnas in Art," showed careful preparation and thoughtful study, while the paper of Mrs. Frank Marksbury on, "Famous Women of the Bible" was full and comprehensive.

Mrs. J. B. Kinnaird gave a short talk on the "Famous Women of Today". In the short time allowed her, both in preparing and giving it, she named an innumerable army of women famous in the scientific, medical and legal world, not leaving out teachers, missionaries and reformers, emphasizing that trite phrase, "There is no walk of life or profession the women of today have not entered."

The Civic Department of the Woman's Club, on Thursday afternoon discussed "What We Owe Our City of the Dead."

It was recalled that a few years ago some of our women organized a cemetery auxiliary, and working with the cemetery company achieved many and marked improvements in beautifying and caring for the place in general. They relate that the funds which purchased the handsome gates were willingly and cheerfully given by our people living here and elsewhere. This Auxiliary wishes to organize in the Spring for active work, and they desire those interested (and who is not?) to join them in this work.

There are some facts in life about which even the sternest and most indifferent must pause and consider, no matter how unwillingly, sooner or later, the attention and interest will be called there and forever. This City of Our Dead which marks the great Divide and holds enshrined the cherished idols of our broken homes, and over which the peace of love reigns supreme, should be made as beautiful to the sight as it is dear to the heart. This is a privilege accorded those who still live among us, but there are families of whom not a single member remains to perform these tender ministries, now should their lots remain uncared for and be forgotten, as in time yours may be?

A short while ago in passing thru our cemetery one greatly interested in the care of the place, accidentally stumbled and fell into a sunken and neglected grave; no stone marked the last resting place, but prompted by an interest, inquiry was made and it was found to be that of one who gallantly answered the Call to Arms and fought at Buena Vista with honor and distinction. In private life he was gentlemanly and courtly in his bearing, and for years was identified with the business of our town, a staunch member of the church and always allied with the civil and moral interests of the community. Is this our appreciation of his years of labor among us? What Do We Owe Our City of the Dead?

ENERGY FROM A SUGAR DIET

Experiments Have Shown That It Has a Wonderful Effect Upon the Human Body.

The physiologist who discovered that your liver and your muscles manufacture sugar while you sleep has been surprised by the German physician who uses sugar dissolved in water as an excellent surgical dressing for all sorts of wounds.

Drs. Jacques Pansot and Piere Mathieu have declared that when animals eat sugar exclusively for long periods their weight at first decreases, soon begins to mend and then fall away again as the diet continues.

Dr. H. Heald of Tacoma Park, D. C., disagrees with the laboratory findings. He says sugar is comparable to gasoline. As the latter is the fuel of the internal combustion engine, so sugar is the fuel of the human machine. Sugar, he says, is the staff of life, and man can produce more energy from sugar than from any other food. A distinguished British heart specialist has lately proved the efficacy of lump sugar in the treatment of a man nearly eighty years old who was dying with a vicious disease of the heart. After all the usual remedial measures had failed one of the maids asked if there was any objection to feeding the sufferer lump sugar. The physician gave his consent and four lumps were given in a little water. These were repeated every four hours, and in a week he was a well man.

Dr. Berzeller recommends to one of the German medical societies the use of powdered sugar in the treatment of old, ill treated and neglected cancers. He says the application of sugar to the fetid parts lessens the disagreeable odor and discharges. Furthermore, the general condition of the patient improves and all hemorrhages cease. Indeed, unless you have had a long experience with cancer patients, you are liable to be deluded into the belief that the cancer has healed.

BRIGHTEN THAT NORTH ROOM

Skillful Touches in Arrangement of Furniture and Draperies Will Accomplish Wonders.

I would advise papering the room with a self-toned paper, light tan in color as near to the tint of sunshine as you can get. Your shades should, of course, match those in use all over the house. Then make your drapery curtains of tan art scrim, just a deep hemstitched hem at the bottom, and allow them to hang straight.

Stain the woodwork white and give it several coats, finishing off with an enamel or egg-shell finish. For the center of the room have an "art square" made. This may be woven as the rug rugs are or crocheted or knitted. I prefer the woven rugs and beautiful solid effects with handsome borders now possible.

Try to have the rose color predominate in rug and articles of furnishing for the bureau and chiffonier, pillows and couch cover. With white enamel furniture, the north room will be far from a cold, repellent room, and will be a transplanted sunshiny corner.—Exchange.

STANLEY

Receives Enthusiastic Greeting from Lincoln County Democrats.

Last Monday was a cold and disagreeable day and the crowd that attended Court Day at Stanford was smaller than usual. But when the hour appointed for Congressman A. O. Stanley to speak came on, the auditorium at the Court House was filled. Hon. J. B. Paxton presented the speaker with complimentary words calling special attention to the great services the distinguished visitor had rendered the people in his effective work in dealing with the trusts as a legislator.

Mr. Stanley stated that the democrats of Kentucky in casting their vote for a representative in the Federal Senate were voting for themselves and that the candidate selected should represent the policies and principals of the majority of democrats of the State. He remarked that his opponent Governor Beckham belonged to a directly opposite school of political thought from that of the speaker and classed his opponent as a reactionary democrat and placed himself with the progressive wing of the democratic party now led by Woodrow Wilson, W. J. Bryan and Ollie James. Mr. Stanley caused considerable laughter in his ridicule of the Interior Journal and its editor. Editor Richard Knott and the Louisville Post were declared the greatest foes of Kentucky democracy at this time and continuously for the past dozen years. He referred to the assaults made by this Journal and its editor upon Goebel and the democratic organization and that Mr. Shelton, Sausley and the Interior Journal were now under the influence of this Journal and its editor. He stated that the denunciation of Knott and the Post over Shelton reminded him of a newly hatched nest of a quail, blindly, with open mouths, gulping down everything that the mother pigeon dropped in.

The cartoon published in the Post and the Interior Journal representing Stanley as running from the Webb-Kenyon Bill was declared by the speaker a misrepresentation and slander and that although the picture looked like Stanley it acted like Beckham. He voted against the Webb-Kenyon Bill because it was unconstitutional and his position had been upheld by the Supreme Court of South Carolina and Iowa, and the Court of Appeals of Kentucky held it inoperative in this State. He declared the insinuation in the Interior Journal that the whiskey trust was behind his candidacy for the Senate was wholly untrue and without any foundation, and that he had introduced in Congress legislation that if enacted would destroy all trusts, including the whiskey trust. Governor Beckham's legislative policy dealing with railroads and other corporations while Governor was vigorously criticized. The laws, according to the speaker, enacted while Mr. Beckham was Governor favored the organization of trusts and rendered annulment of the section of the State constitution adopted to prevent monopoly.

Mr. Ben F. Woods, of Danville, was in Lancaster last Friday. Ben is one of our home boys, and is employed in the firm of Cooke and Cable, and is a hustling young man and liked by all. His many friends here are interested in him, and a very successful future is predicted for him.

Prohibition Amendment Day. Quite an interesting program was carried out by the local white-ribboners furnished by the National W. C. T. U. through the state organization this week. The day was observed by fasting and prayer for victory in this campaign for the amendment of the constitution in the cause of the National W. C. T. U.

Good, But Not Practical. The plan of the Ford Motor Company to distribute $10,000,000 of profits among its 26,000 employees during the current year, has recently been announced. The idea is an estimable one and the directors of the company are to be congratulated for their humanitarian practices, but the whole theory is tinged with a Utopian quality and is almost certainly foredoomed to failure. It runs dead against all experience. The movement for the betterment of society need not, in their opinion, be universal. They think that one concern can make a start and create an example. All well and good if other companies follow their lead, but they probably would not, even if they were financially able. They make the pace hard for all other industries, for there are very few which can make up a payroll on the basis of $5.00 a day as a minimum wage. The industries can not double their prevailing wage rate. Under our present social and financial system, trade seeks its level as certainly as water. The exceptions, which are rare and artificially maintained, always disappear. The operation of the plan was seen when 10,000 men struggled and fought around the plant of the Ford Motor Co., clamoring for jobs. Serious disturbances in the Automobile market are sure to follow. There will be strikes and unrest in the shops of other companies.

The breakdown of the theory is most likely to occur in the "Sociological department". This department says it will "keep an eye on the men and any who are found using the extra money in a way considered improper for right living, will be eliminated". "Elimination" will surely be resisted, for the dismissal of one employee, will certainly be the concern of all, just as it is in labor unions. Human nature has always and always will be the same, and no amount of "profit sharing" will change it. A company blessed with $10,000,000 profit over the demands of its stockholders, is of course optimistic. Their plan is based on the theory of perpetual sunshine. In lean years, this sum will shrink appallingly. The Ford cars are sold at a low price, but the criticism will be inevitable, that instead of so extravagant a distribution, the wise and just system would have been to have raised their wages a little, improved the quality of their cars a little, and reduce the price a little. The Interstate Commerce Commission would not allow the New Haven Road to increase their rates, merely to provide high wages for its employees. As Elbert Hubbard said of Socialism, "There is only one thing wrong with the plan, and that is, it won't work."

In that "true report of the Stanley speaking" promised by the Interior Journal the statement was made that there was a "committee on applause" in attendance headed by Editor Joe Robinson. Well, there is just as much truth in that as your former statements that "Hardin and Stanley were after Helm's scalp" or "that Editor Robinson was moving heaven and earth to get opposition to Helm", or we "were trying to shunt Henry Jackson from the Judicial tract to the Congressional siding" or that "you did not deny to Owen McIntyre the sending of the famous Dispatch to the Post" until you was smoked out.

Be sure and don't republish that article about Congressman Johnson.

Last week the Interior Journal promised a true report of the Stanford county court day. Any one of the large audience who heard the speech and may chance to observe the report as published may judge whether the paper keeps its promises more truly than the editor does his pre-election pledges when he promised if sent to the Legislature to vote against all illegal appropriations. Does his vote for the extra help, about the first he cast, redeem his pledge?

Creed Still Wanted.

Mrs. E. C. Stull, of Camp Nelson, is anxious to hear from her son, Creed Stull, who left home about July 25th 1913. Was last heard from in Fairmount, Ind. His mother is sick and any information as to his whereabouts will be appreciated.

Remarkable Coincidence.

A remarkable coincidence in the lives of County Judge Clayton A. Arnold, who has just assumed that high office, and Sheriff Curt A. Robinson, who has also just taken that office, but who served the county in the same capacity many years ago, is the fact that the first official act of Mr. Robinson upon entering upon his office for the first time as sheriff, was to arrest one Curtis Robinson Ambrose, a namesake, who was sent to the School of Reform, and the first official act of Mr. Arnold upon being inducted into the office of County Judge was to send his namesake, a colored youth, Clayton Arnold Anderson to the School of Reform. The name seems to be about all that these worthy gentlemen have bestowed, as their namesakes do not seem to have followed the straight and narrow path followed by those from whom they receive their cognomen.

No Longer Horseless Carriages But Moto Cars

If one will look over the advertising pages of the magazines of five or six years ago the pictures of the automobiles then sold will strikingly illustrate the development since then of this modern sport. At that time the manufacturers seemed to have an ambition to conceal the fact, so far as possible, that their vehicles were machines. They made buggies and surreys with the engines hidden away beneath the seats and the flooring, and a new topic was given to the joke writers and cartoonists, that of the motorist lying on his back in the dusty or muddy road, tinkering awkwardly at the almost inaccessible inner parts above him.

The world still regarded these vehicles as "horseless carriages," and it was several years after they came into use before the makers realized that they should forsake the designs of carriage manufacturers and treat the cars frankly as engines.

Gradually, bicycle wheels and light bodies were discarded, the engines were taken from their ignominious position under the body and placed forward under a protecting bonnet, where they might be easily reached; the chassis became suitably heavy, and the modern motor car emerged triumphant as an engine of locomotion. Today it no longer sails under false colors; it looks the world in the face, an enfranchised motor car.

Mr. Thomas Dunn One Of Bryantsville's Most Substantial Citizens Dies Suddenly.

Mr. Thomas Dunn died at his home in Bryantsville at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The summons came suddenly and without warning and while he was in front of the place of business of Mr. Samuel Haselden, and was due to an attack of heart disease. He was removed to Mr. Haselden's home where he died within an hour after he was stricken.

The deceased was one of the best known citizens of the county. He was seventy years of age and was unusually active for his years. He always took an active interest in the affairs of the county and was probably one of the best informed men as to land valuations in the county, and because of this qualification was often chosen as a member of the county board of supervisors. He was a man of wide information and splendid judgment as well as a gentleman of the strictest integrity. He was highly esteemed throughout the county and in his own locality was freely consulted upon business matters, his advice being considered of great value, and he by his wise counsel has prevented many a lawsuit. Mr. Dunn at the outbreak of the Civil war espoused the Union cause and served with distinction under the late Col. J. K. Faulkner in the 7th Ky. cavalry. He was a member of the Christian church and of the F. & A. M. Lodge.

The deceased was a son of the late Jefferson and Nancy Baughman. Dunn, pioneer residents of the Bryantsville section. He is survived by one brother, Benjamin Dunn of Danville and one sister, Mrs. Alice Adams of Denver, Colo.

The interment will be in the Lancaster cemetery this, Friday morning at 11 o'clock, and the Masonic fraternity will have charge of the services.

Simon Boliver Buckner.

The private life and public career of Gen. Buckner were the embodiment of those ideals of honor, courage and service which cause their possessor to stand as a peer among men. Kentucky has brought forth many noble products, but it has sired no truer son, the country no finer type of man. His long life, as full of years as of honors, is now closed, and it bears no stain. Kentucky stood with uncovered head and reverent heart as he was borne to his last resting place at Frankfort to lie near other Kentucky governors and soldiers. It must have been a touching scene when the gray-haired Confederate veterans and old friends of Gen. Buckner joined in singing "Nearer, My God, To Thee."

Elmendorf Entertains Kentucky Beef Cattle Association.

Upon the invitation of Mr. C. H. Berryman, Pres. Kentucky Beef Cattle Association, about 400 cattle dealers were royally entertained at the Elmendorf Stock Farm last Saturday, it being a fitting finale to the Farmers Institute which had been going on all week. They came from all parts of the state and were met in Lexington by special cars which conveyed them to the farms where an interesting program was carried out and a butchering demonstration was given, showing the superiority of a prime beef steer to a steer of inferior breed. Mr. Haggin owner of Elmendorf, contributing the steers from his herds. Mr. Jonas Weil, of Lexington, first outlined on the steers the regions from which the different cuts came and indicated the respects in which the prime steer was better than the common rough, from strictly the butchers and consumers standpoint. He said that too many steers of the common rough type are being produced in Kentucky at the present time, and that the advantages of using a pure bred sire is not being appreciated by the average farmer as it should be from the standpoint of profit alone. The visitors were royally entertained at a luncheon spread in the big dairy barn, which was spotlessly clean and decorated throughout with magnificent cut flowers and potted plants. After luncheon the guests were taken to the abattoir, where the demonstration was given. The prime steer which weighed 1650, pounds, dressed out 65.63 per cent, or a total of 1083 pounds of dressed beef, while the common steer, weighing 1550 pounds, dressed out 52.45 per cent, or a total of 813 pounds of beef. The Association selected the best of the officers.

Open Air School Classes.

In certain schools in New York it has been decided to hear lessons in the open air. The plan has been in use in Boston for some years. To a lesser extent it has been practiced in Chicago and in Cleveland.

There is a good deal to be said in favor of open-air lessons. In the case of children with a predisposition to tubercular disease the advantage would be great. That it would work favorably also with children who are physically weak from any cause may well be believed. The importance of fresh air as an element of health is now very generally recognized. The ventilation in crowded school rooms is not always what it should be. In building school-houses increasing attention is being paid to this matter. The buildings that are being erected nowadays are better and more sanitary than those of the past.

Despite these changing conditions there are innumerable schoolhouses that are better adapted for barns than for the purpose of herding a miscellaneous aggregation of pupils. There are teachers, it is regrettable to say, who do not appreciate the benefits of fresh air and who do not comprehend the menace of foul air. Despite the unflinching efforts of medical authorities and sanitary experts to educate the masses there yet remain with us some millions of American citizens who shrink from the "night air" and who avoid a draft as assiduously as they would dodge a contagious disease. Doubtless there are parents in plenty who will see baleful possibilities in open-air lessons. A departure of the kind therefore should constitute a valuable object lesson for parental dissenters, as well as a benefit to sickly children.

Pupils are not likely to distinguish themselves in scholarship where to the burden of poor physical development is added the handicap of insufficient ventilation. Open-air lessons, where and when the surrounding conditions make them desirable, probably will prove beneficial both to teachers and pupils.

Roll, Roll, Roll.

(Rolling on the floor as a method of reducing weight will be more popular with women this year than ever before.—News Item.)

Roll, roll, roll,
On shoulder and hip and knee,
And I would that my stays could fetter.
My growing obesity.

O well for the housemaid trim,
Who sings like her work was play;
O well for the willow cook,
Who joins in the roundelay.

But my stately figure grows on,
Defying all care or skill;
And O for the grip of anti-fat,
That will make my weight stand still!

Roll, roll, roll,
On shoulder and hip and knee,
But the slender grace of a shape that is fled
Will never come back to me.

He Hadn't Time.

He hadn't time, when the days were fair
And others were giving him praise,
To think of her, with her whitened hair

And her homely old-fashioned ways;
He hadn't time to remember how
She had taught him his childhood prayers.

And smoothed the lines from his troubled brow
When he fretted with boyish cares.
He hadn't time when the fair winds blew

And his dreams were of proud success,
When his hopes were high and his sorrows few,
To think of her loneliness;
But he found the time in the later days

To wish that he might forget,
And to feel, while he listened to empty praise,
The ache of a vain regret.

Who Can Beat It.

Miss Jennie Dickerson, assisted by Miss Minerva Cox, have just closed their School at the Antioch School House which we think is hard to beat. Miss Dickerson is to be classed among the very best of teachers. Her work was thorough from beginning to end. It was either know your lesson or remain at noon and if that failed they received just a little of what our grand-parents used to get. Would that we had more such teachers in Garrard Co.

There was no prize offered for the best general average but Floyd Ison was surprised by a handsome prize for the best general average for the entire term which was 98.

Jim Hamilton 97, Ruth Broadus 96, Bertha Belle Broadus 95, Elgin Broadus 94, Louis Broadus 94, and William Ison 94.

Now if every teacher will promise to see that each child write their own letter on Agriculture, Manual Training and Business and so on and so on and every child have his or her own hand work and that each one is put in the right grade. We will prove our writing by our work at your next School Fair.

One More Spiritual Land Slide.

The Davistown Baptist Church, after remaining in a state of lethargy for quite a while, called to its pastorate, a little less than a year ago Rev. Wm. Hocker of Hodgenville, Ky.

Rev. Hocker has proven himself to be of that class of ministers who are not satisfied with lagers. He has worked up quite an interest among his people at Davistown during the past season.

Under the leadership of Rev. Hocker the people have beautified and painted their church and put in new stoves.

On the third Lord's day in November Brother Hocker began a series of meetings, and closed the Second Sunday in this month with an addition of (47) forty seven, of which (38) thirty eight are candidates for the water.

Revs. H. Miller of New Port, and Stepen Davis of Stony Point, assisted in the meetings during the last two weeks and did some valuable work.

Such a spiritual awakening has not been felt in Davistown since the seventies and the people should feel themselves complimented in having such a man as Rev. Hocker as their spiritual leader.

The baptizing took place on Dix river the 21st inst at a place dedicated by the Baptist Church at Davistown under the leadership of its former pastor, and organizer, Rev. Lot Smith A. D. 1875 the baptizing was performed by Rev. Wm. Hocker, who did his work well in 13 minutes. The baptizing was witnessed by a large crowd among which were some of the best white people of the neighborhood.

still leads with pounds and prices, selling
this past week

828,485 lbs. for $112,406.18

an average of $13.57.

The entire market sold 2,964,495 lbs for $390,321.09 an average of $13.17
Take the INDEPENDENT SALES from total sales of past week leaves 2,139,910 lbs sold for $277,914.91 an average of $13.01.

So you can see by these figures that we have sold about one-third of the tobacco and lead the other eleven houses by 56cts per hundred. Therefore the farmers that sold this 2,139,910 lbs at these other houses figured at 56cts lost; $11,961.10 by not selling at the INDEPENDENT HOUSE. We do not boast of a high average on a few crops, but publish our figures for the public.

So figure for yourself how you can make your part of this $11,961.10 and bring your crop to the INDEPENDENT HOUSE.

Mr. Clay Pumphrey, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pumphrey of this city, is in Lancaster, for a visit to his parents. Clay is now making his home in Corbin, where he is the manager of a successful moving picture theater. Clay began his electrical work in Lancaster, going from here to Danville, where he operated a machine, and is now one of the most expert operators in the state.

Wagon Loads Of Wealth.

A few days ago one could have counted twenty wagon loads of the golden hue tobacco, piled high on each wagon, waiting their turn to be unloaded at our local Warehouse, conducted by Billy Speith, who every body likes, and judging from the tobacco he is getting, is paying as much or a little more than it is bringing over the loose markets. People who are not used to seeing these loaded wagons rolling into town, marvel at its enormity. Twenty wagons loaded with the choicest of tobacco, for Garrard County produces the choicest, and each wagon would no doubt average 3000 pounds to the wagon, and at an average of 13 cents, means nearly enough money to buy a good size farm. It is undoubtedly the most valued crop of our beautiful country, and it will continue to be an every increasing asset to the state. Valuable as Kentucky's tobacco crop is at the present time, it would be still more valuable if the government would make the big tobacco companies obey strictly the decree of the Supreme Court.

Movement To Get Fathers and Sons Closer Together.

Robert E. Lewis, secretary of the Cleveland Young Men's Christian Association, who originated the "father and son" movement, has received letters from the mayors of more than 100 cities stating that they have issued proclamations calling upon citizens to participate in the movement to draw fathers and their sons into closer union. "Father and son" movements have been formally launched in San Francisco, Washington, Brooklyn, Baltimore, Chicago, Long Beach, Calif.; Westfield, N. Y.; Grand Rapids, Mich; Middletown, N. Y.; Marion, Ind.; Marion, Ohio; Racine, Wis.; Elmira, N. Y.; Chagrin Falls, O., and Athol, Mass. Among other letters, Mr. Lewis received one from John Purroy Mitchell of New York, in which he gave the movement his hearty endorsement. Mayor Wallace G. Nye of Minneapolis issued a proclamation in which he said home should be "more than a mere place in which to sleep and eat."

Garrard County Man Secures Nice Appointment In Revenue Service Under Collector Hughes.

Mr. Victor Ruble of Buena Vista, son of Mr. J. B. Ruble, has been appointed a Deputy Collector under Collector John W. Hughes, and has been assigned to the collection of the Income Tax for Garrard county. The position is one of the most lucrative within the gift of Collector Hughes and carries with it a straight salary of $1200 per annum. The appointment will meet with popular approval in Garrard county, due both to the fact that Mr. Ruble is a deserving and capable young man, and that his father "Rome" Ruble is and has for many years been a wheel horse for Garrard county democracy, and the appointment is but a slight token of the appreciation of the services rendered by him and the Ruble family to the cause of democracy.

Mr. Anderson Bowling Has Been Appointed Division Deputy for the Counties of Jackson, Owsley and Laurel.

Mr. Anderson Bowling has been a resident of Garrard county and has many friends here, all of whom did everything in their power to secure the appointment for him. He is a brother of Mr. Green Bowling of this county and a brother-in-law of Mr. W. S. Carrier of Lancaster, and his appointment will also prove very acceptable to Garrard county democracy.

—London Opinion.

O Tempora: O Mores!

In looking over an old paper called the Lancaster Letter with one French Tipton, editor and proprietor and published in 1867 we see the following: "Master Jeff Dunn sends us a tomato measuring over 15 inches and weighing 20 ounces.

Mr. J. Wesley West sends us a twin Squash that is the greatest curiosity we have seen in the vegetable line.

Dr. Fisher sends us an early rose potato that weighs 29 ounces.

Mrs. W. H. Wherritt has our thanks for a large basket of excellent grapes and apples, very fine ones indeed.

We are obliged to Judge Wm McKee Duncan for a basket of excellent grapes.

Mrs. Tom Wherritt has our thanks for a delightful plate of cake."

Think of it, all of this in one issue of the paper. They tell us times have changed,—Yea, verily we think they have.

SOIL SURVEY RESULTS

Interesting Statistics Announced by Government.

Dwarf Kafir Corn Has Proved Profitable Farm Crop—Peruvian Alfalfa Valuable in Warm Climates Diseases of Potatoes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

During the year ending June 30, 1913, an area amounting to 52,508,000 acres was covered by soil surveys by the department of agriculture. Of this amount 21,210,880 acres were surveyed and mapped in detail. Parts of thirty-one states were included in this work and all sections of the country were represented. The remainder of the area surveyed was covered which took in a reconnaissance survey. The total area of which soil surveys have been made up to June 30, last, is 703,235 square miles.

Dwarf Kafir Corn Has Proved a Profitable Farm Crop.

The department of agriculture announced that the dwarf kafir corn has been extensively distributed through federal states and commercial agencies and has proved to be a very desirable and profitable farm crop. Feterita has awakened much interest as a desirable type of white durra. Both faterita and dwarf kafir are adapted to harvesting with the ordinary grain header, which adds greatly to the value as crops for extensive farming.

The department has taken a prominent part in the campaign now being waged for the planting of pure and viable broom corn seed. Experiments with dwarf broom corn tend to prove that this crop is usually sown too thickly for best results.

High Value of Sudan Grass. Sudan grass has continued to demonstrate its high value for the semi-arid regions, and even in the humid regions has given exceedingly satisfactory results.

Ninety Acres of Alfalfa on J. E. Long's Grand View Farm, Seven Miles Northeast of Wagner, Oklahoma.

factory results. Extensive experiments are being made with this grass and arrangements have been made so that sufficient seed will be grown for all demands.

Rhodes grass is continuing to show its high value for Florida and Gulf coast conditions. American-grown seed will be produced to meet the continued growing demands.

Vetches. Interest in the cultivation of vetches, especially the hairy vetch, continues to increase, and there is probably now a greater acreage grown than ever before. In many parts of the United States seed is now being grown successfully. One difficulty in the production of hairy vetch seed, which ordinarily must be grown with a small grain crop, has been the separation of the seeds.

By means of the spiral seed separator, this can easily be accomplished, and these machines are now available to American farmers. There is reason to believe that within the near future sufficient American seed will be raised to meet the demands and probably reduce the price of seed much below what is at present asked. The department has recently introduced the purple vetch, which is especially promising, inasmuch as it yields as much hay and more seed per acre than the common vetch.

Cowpeas. The cowpea investigation, especially in breeding, has resulted in the production of a considerable number of exceedingly promising new varieties, some of which, especially from the view point of seed production, are apparently superior to any of the standard varieties.

Alfalfa. The breeding of improved varieties of alfalfa, especially hardy and drought-enduring strains, has developed new possibilities through the finding of forms of yellow-flowered Medicago falcata that produce new plants from true lateral roots. Certain of the forms that possess this character are good forage types, and it is hoped that by hybridizing them with selected plants of common alfalfa an extremely vigorous strain will result.

As a result of the recent introduction of new roots of seed of Peruvian alfalfa, the chances of establishing this variety in the southwest are becoming extremely favorable. Peruvian alfalfa has so thoroughly demonstrated its value as a quick-growing strain for warm climates that little difficulty is anticipated in getting it thoroughly established as soon as the seed is placed on the market.

Potato Diseases. The appearance in a destructive way of several new diseases of potatoes in large producing areas has caused great alarm and heavy loss in certain of the important potato producing districts of the Rocky Mountain territory. Among these maladies, heretofore unknown in this country, are leaf-roll, known in Europe for a number of years, curly-dwarf, rosette, and the mosaic disease.

The attention of the pathologists in charge of this line of work has been devoted exclusively to a study of the causes and methods for controlling these troubles. As a result of the investigation a method has been worked out by which the resistance of the foliage of potato varieties or seedlings may be tested in the greenhouse during the winter which will greatly facilitate the work of potato breeding and will also furnish a method of determining whether seed potatoes are free from this disease. Recent investigations have proved that the dry rot of potatoes, which has been destructive in certain regions, is not caused by Fusarium, as was previously supposed, but that this disease is due to other wound parasites.

Date Ripening. The work during the last year has proved beyond a doubt that the artificial ripening of dates such as the Degelet Noor may be carried on cheaply and efficiently merely by keeping the full-sized though immature fruit in a moist, warm condition. Fruit so ripened is cleaner and more attractive than that ripened on the tree. Thus the failure of the Degelet Noor to ripen on the tree as it does in some parts of the Sahara Desert, which at first seems a great drawback to date culture in California, turns out to be an actual advantage, permitting the ripening of the fruit more uniformly and more efficiently than is possible in the open air, where the conditions cannot be controlled.

Date Propagation. The rapid propagation of date offshoots is a matter of great importance to the development of the date

BRISTOL-TO-LEXINGTON HIGHWAY.

Bristol, Tenn., January 10.—In Colonial days, when American civilization was young, the great movement westward was across the Blue Ridge and thence westward along the Virginia-Tennessee boundary, through Cumberland Gap into Kentucky. It was this route that Isaac Shelby, the first governor of Kentucky, and Daniel Boone, the pioneer hunter, traveled when they moved westward from "the Watauga Settlement." The Tennessee-Virginia boundary line took the same direction, the natural inclination being to reach the gap in the Cumberland range of mountains. This is still the most direct route from the South-east into Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and a modern stone highway over this old "Wilderness route" is just as essential to present-day conditions, with multiplying automobiles, as was the old "Wilderness Road" to the hardy pioneers.

Next in importance to the Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio Railway, which courses the mountains on a direct north and south line, and which is soon to give Kentucky, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and the great lake region a quick route to the far south, is the proposed Bristol-to-Lexington (Ky.) highway. Such a highway, leading along the Virginia-Tennessee border and through Cumberland Gap, will bring not only Lexington, but Louisville, Cincinnati and other cities in that direction, in closer touch with the south and east, and will be a much sought route by automobile tourists. This movement, coupled with a movement now being inaugurated, to make Bristol the northern terminus of the "Crest of the Blue Ridge Highway," means that travel from the west this way over the new and direct route will find it convenient to speed southward from here along the crest of the Blue Ridge into the South Atlantic states. This Crest of the Blue Ridge road can be brought into Bristol by the building of only fifty-three miles of highway through the counties of Watauga, in North Carolina, and Johnson and Sullivan, in Tennessee. Johnson and Sullivan counties have already graded a portion of this road, and steps are now being taken looking to the completion of the road in these counties. The course of these two roads leads through territory that was made memorable by the American revolution. King's Mountain, where Gen. Isaac Shelby and John Sevier struck a great blow for American Independence, when they, with an army of hardy backwoodsmen, routed Ferguson and his men, thus winning in a contest that marked the turning point in the Revolution, is adjacent to the "Crest of the Blue Ridge Highway". With the building of these roads, the people of Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana will have a direct automobile route to the scenes made memorable by the struggles of the pioneers, who blazed the way for the march of civilization westward in this country. The route will be noted also for its scenic beauty, as it traverses the Cumberland and Appalachian ranges, passing over that portion of the mountain where the Virginia and Southwestern Railway passes through the wonderful Natural Tunnel, in Scott County, Virginia. The Bristol-to-Lexington Highway is surveyed to pass very near this great tunnel, which is one of the most remarkable freaks of nature to be found in any part of the world.

In order to accomplish this work, Kentucky only has to do as much as Virginia, and assuming that the Kentuckians will do their share of the work with the same progressive spirit that characterizes the Virginians, the highway will be an accomplished fact within the next two or three years.

Many persons laughed at the impracticability of constructing the Memphis-to-Bristol highway across Tennessee, but that road is now about three-fourths completed, while the same spirit that prompted it, has aroused the Virginians to the task of constructing a similar highway from Bristol across the Old Dominion to the national capital. The same people are also constructing a highway from Bristol to Bluefield, W. Va., and the good road enthusiasts assert that this is the beginning of what is destined to be the Bristol-to-Pittsburg Highway.

Leaving Bristol, the Bristol-to-Lexington Highway runs nine miles through Washington County, Virginia, which link has just been surveyed by the state highway engineer. The funds to build this link have been provided by bond issue and private subscriptions. Scott County adjoins Washington. This county has voted bonds for the building of its link of the new highway, and work is to be commenced in the spring. Lee County, which adjoins Scott on the West, has already constructed nearly fifty miles of the new highway. This means that the Virginians have provided for 75 of its 95 miles of the Bristol-to-Lexington highway, extending to Cumberland Gap.

From Cumberland Gap, Bell County, Kentucky, has constructed a macadam road to Middlesboro, but from that town to Crab Orchard, Ky., a distance of 93 miles, the highway has not been provided for. At Crab Orchard the highway route connects with the Central Kentucky system of turnpikes, over which Lexington and other Kentucky towns may be reached.

The Bristol-to-Lexington Highway Association will take up with the county officials and with others in Kentucky the matter of pushing this undertaking to completion. It is believed, judging from information recently published concerning road legislation in Kentucky, that that state will soon be in a position to enter more actively into the work of road construction.

The building of the link from Middlesboro to Crab Orchard would be a notable triumph, since it would be the means of completing this highway direct from the southeast into Kentucky and Ohio.

It is doubtful if Kentucky could enter upon another single enterprise that would hold more of significance to the people of that state than that of building the necessary links to make a complete highway, extending from Lexington to Bristol. Not only would Kentuckians then have a direct route over the Blue Ridge to the South Atlantic states, but a similar route eastward to Richmond, Norfolk and Washington; for the Bristol-to-Washington highway will be completed before it will be possible to construct the links to complete the Bristol-to-Lexington road.

For a direct route between Kentucky and the Middle West States, the Bristol-to-Lexington Highway is absolutely essential, and that the Kentuckians appreciate this, is not to be doubted for a moment. Travel from the Middle West to the Southeast in automobiles can be only by circuitous routes, losing much in time and adding to the expense in a way to make it wholly impracticable.

Following are the officers of Bristol-to-Lexington Highway Association:

President:—Mr. J. H. Wolfe, Speers Ferry, Va.

Attention! Poultry Raisers.

One of my show birds had the worst case of roup I ever saw. She was almost dead before I noticed it. I purchased a bottle of Bourbon Poultry Cure and I took a feather, dipped it into the medicine and swabbed out her brood as far down as I could reach. I also put a liberal quantity in her soft feed and drinking water, and today she is well and sound and is laying nearly every day. It is certainly the most remarkable medicine I ever saw. I would not think of being without it and I hope to induce other poultrymen to keep it on hand constantly. Joseph VanZiegler, State Vice President and Life Member of American Buff Poultry Club, of Indiana and Proprietor of Golden Glow Poultry Yards, 221 W. South Street, Indianapolis, Ind. 50c at Druggists or by mail, in a position to enter more actively into the work of road construction.

Week By Week.

Each Week Appear the Statements of Lancaster Residents.

Last week it was a Lancaster citizen who spoke. The week before, it was a Lancaster citizen who spoke. The week before, and for many weeks before it was a Lancaster citizen who spoke. And again this week it is a Lancaster man. You are not asked to act upon the word of a stranger. The best guidance that is humanly possible to give you—the encouraging word of neighbors, is always given.

Will C. Davis, Danville Pike, Lancaster, Ky., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have done me more good than anything else and I can recommend them to everyone. My kidney action was irregular and I had backache. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved me."

"When Your Back is Lame—Remember the Name." Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Davis had—the remedy backed by some testimony. 50c all store. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Warning To Girls.

It appears girls and women need constantly to be on the alert if they would escape the traps set for them in the cities, if not in rural towns, by agents of the white slave traffic. Two recent incidents show how women are made victims in spite of themselves. Possibly they account for the numerous disappearances of girls in cities, who never are heard of again.

Recently a mother and daughter went from Jersey City to New York City on a shopping tour. To economize time they separated, each to do some errands down town, agreeing to meet in an hour and a half in Macy's parlor. The daughter finished her errands first, and having time to spare, was looking into the window of a store nearby. As the crowd gathered around her, she felt a sharp pin prick in her arm, but paid no attention to it except to rub the spot. She then went to Macy's, as agreed, to wait for her mother, but as soon as she had taken her seat, fell to the floor in a swoon. The matron was called, and the doctor of the establishment summoned. After looking at the girl he said, "Oh, it's only a case of drunk. We will take her to a window, and the air will help to revive her."

At this juncture, a well dressed man came hurrying up as though looking for someone, and seeing the unconscious girl lying there, said to the matron, "This is my wife; she has these drinking spells occasionally. I have a carriage at the door and will take her home."

Provisionally, the mother, who had been searching for her daughter, pushed her way through the group, and seeing the man about to take her away, she sprang forward, saying, "This is my daughter. What are you doing?" In the excitement of the moment the man fled, and could not be found.

The other instance is of a young woman living in Newark, N. J., who went to New York City recently, and after attending to her business, stepped into a moving picture place in the shopping center. After a few moments, the girl felt a sharp pin prick in the side of her neck. She looked around and saw a man and a woman of ordinary appearance sitting behind her, but they seemed intent upon the pictures being exhibited. She felt dizzy, so made her way out of the place and seeing a policeman near by, went to him and asked him to take of her. She was taken to the station house by the officer, and the sergeant in charge, as soon as she was brought before him recognized the symptoms, saying, "It is another of those knock-out cases."

In both instances these girls had been punctured with a hypodermic needle containing some strong opiate, and had not Providence mercifully interposed, both, without doubt, would have been counted among the numerous cases of young women who mysteriously disappear, and are forced into slavery as inmates of houses of prostitution.

Since the foregoing was written half a dozen similar cases have been reported in the news dispatches, one that of a young bride whose escape from the slavers was almost providential. The poisoned needle gang is believed to have taken for its prey Miss Jessie McCann, the 23 year old daughter of Robert McCann, a wealthy wholesale grocer. She disappeared as mysteriously as the ill-fated Dorothy Arnold.

GETTING HIS REVENGE

By ALICE KILLIAN.

"Every time," the riding master was muttering, savagely, "every single time I'm away from this academy for a few days things go wrong."

The immediate cause of his anger was a heap of grayish garments on the table in his office. He inspected each article carefully, and then tossed it wrathfully in some corner of the room until the room took on the appearance of a windstruck clothing shop. Finally he could contain himself no longer.

"Hey, Jim!" he shouted. "Jim!" Grasping one of the objects of his rage in a gingerly fashion between thumb and finger, he held it up scornfully to the gaze of his assistant when the latter appeared in response to the call. With exaggerated patience he asked: "Jim, what in the name of wonder do you call this thing?"

Jim glanced at it. He also noted the purple face of his employer and the devastation about him, but he answered in a matter of fact way: "Why, Mr. Leonard, that's one of the new riding outfits that Cuttum & Quick sent over while you were gone."

"Truly," responded Leonard, with elaborate sarcasm. "I suppose I'll have to believe you, but I thought it was a couple of feed bags sewed together. Anyhow, take them all back to that tailor shop and tell those fellows to put more material into them, ruffles or plaits—any improvement at all that may suit my fastidious taste. If they don't they can keep the lot."

"They won't do anything to the things now," declared Jim. "I paid for them with the check you left."

"Paid for them! You're mighty laud with other people's money, aren't you?"

"Well," answered Jim, sulkily. "the man said they were according to contract."

"Oh! he did! And you believed him, like a good little boy? Well, he's lying. But take them back and tell those fellows to fix them right."

Jim followed instructions, but returned in due time with the message that the tailors said the garments had been made according to contract, and that the alterations would have to be paid for.

Then for a week Jim carefully avoided the riding master. A cloud of dissatisfaction rested continually on the latter's face. When looking at the new riding skirts he was heard by Jim to mutter: "Oh, I'll get even yet—I've got to get even." Jim was uneasy.

At last one day Leonard came up behind Jim and, clapping him jovially on the shoulder, exclaimed: "Well, I did get even after all." Then at sight of Jim's face he laughed and said: "Oh, not with you. That is, not yet."

"What do I know about riding clothes?" growled Jim in extenuation. "I'm no tailor."

"You'll learn." Leonard rested one foot comfortably on the mounting block and tapped his boot with his riding crop. "There's more to a school like than just horses. Now, I'll tell you how I got even with Cuttum & Quick."

"Last night Mrs. Leonard and I went to that tailor shop, ostensibly to order a riding habit. Cuttum was out, but his partner officiated in full glory. He just spread himself showing patterns and materials."

"But, madam," he said, "we make riding habits for the best society people. Miss Dash has just ordered her third suit from us and Mrs. Blank is having us make habits for herself and her daughter. Just recently, here he puffed himself up proudly, 'we filled a large order for the Leonard Riding academy.'"

"At that Mrs. Leonard gave a little shriek. 'Those awful things?' she cried. 'Why, the academy doesn't rent them to its patrons, nor does it even let us beginners go out of doors in them when we're having instruction.' She jumped up and said to me: 'Come, let's go somewhere else. Any tailor that would make such things as those dreadful habits at Leonard's—she shuddered—'Isn't good enough.'"

"At the door I turned and said, sympathetically: 'I think, Mr. Quick, you'd better not tell any one else that you made those things. Evidently, they're no advertisement.'"

"His face at that moment wore an expression that more than pays for those skirts. So I got even, Mrs. Leonard helping."

BOYS ARE THE LIMIT

By CLARA STACY.

"I actually hate to tell Jimmy about it!" declared Jimmy's mother, shivering, starting at the fashionable invitation card with despairing eyes. "Yes," said Jimmy's father, with understanding. "Then he added, 'Boys certainly are the limit!'"

"Jimmy's nearly fifteen," pursued Jimmy's mother. "I don't see why he isn't old enough not to act like a young savage. Whenever I make him go to a party you would think I was casting him into a den of man eating tigers, to hear him protest. He says girls are nineties and he'd rather play football."

"Seems to me," said Jimmy's father, "that I used to like to go to parties when I was fifteen. I can't understand him!"

"If I didn't stand over him," said Jimmy's mother, "every single minute, he'd get in his old clothes, with tennis shoes and a negligee shirt, and wouldn't care! It's just awful! I'm sure I don't know what my friends think of me. They must have the idea that I don't care anything about Jimmy's social progress and it's just as important to a boy's future as it is to a girl's!"

"Make him go to this," advised Jimmy's father. "The Miklesons will be offended if you don't, and it's the right sort of a crowd for him. It's what he needs."

"I won't say anything about it to him," decided Jimmy's mother, diplomatically, "until the day before. Then he won't have so long a time to object and make life miserable for me!"

Jimmy's mother had occasion many times in the ten days that followed to be thankful for this decision, for Jimmy proved suddenly very difficult to deal with, in spite of his ignorance of the fate that was impending.

The boy stared gloomily out of the window and he poured as gloomily over the contents of his desk.

Once, to her great alarm, his mother found his sorting out his necktie drawer. "Aw, nothin'," he growled, when she demanded to know the reason for this unheard-of interest in his attire. "Can't a fellow do anything without the whole family buzzing about his ears? Wish I had the money dad put in that dress suit of mine! I don't get any use out of it! I could buy two or three dandy football suits!"

Jimmy did not ask for a second piece of chocolate pie when it came on for dessert that night, which in itself was a serious symptom of something wrong. He seemed griddle cakes the next morning and he said he did not want any lunch.

His mother felt his pulse, and insisted on looking at his tongue. "I hope," said Jimmy's mother to Jimmy's father, "that he won't do anything rash when I tell him about the Mikleson party. He's in such a dreadful humor these days that I don't know in the least how to handle him. He's likely to say he won't go. And he's so big that I suppose he won't—he just won't, that's all! Oh dear, I wish he was a girl!"

When Jimmy caught his mother sewing a loose button on his dress coat she quailed. He eyed the work suspiciously, but asked no questions. Rather, he retired to a chair in a corner and moped.

Finally, the night before the party, Jimmy's mother mustered up her courage and told him, very fast, so he could not interrupt. Then she waited to hear the worst.

Her son was staring at her disbelievingly. "The Mikleson party?" he repeated. "Me going to the Miklesons?"

That was all before he abruptly bolted from the room. She heard him presently whistling in his bedroom and held her head wildly. Jimmy was young to go insane, but she had heard of cases—

"Mother!" Jimmy called down. "Don't my dress trousers need pressing?"

"He's going to be ill!" declared his mother to his father later. "I know he's coming down with something awful!"

All the next day Jimmy whistled and sang and heamed and ached sunshine. He went like a lamb to get dressed for the party, and he threw away four ties before he got one to suit him.

He asked his mother's advice as to the part in his hair, and surreptitiously used her manicure set. By that time Jimmy's father, too, was impressed and worried. His family followed Jimmy's glittering progress to the front door at exactly eight o'clock with breathless anxiety.

Never had seen anything like it. "Gee!" said Jimmy, as he folded his neck scarf with painful precision and carefully got into his overcoat. "I was awfully sore all week! I thought I wasn't going to the Miklesons' party, and everyone else was talking about going! I'm going to take Ethel," he added hastily and somewhat defiantly. "Sam was going to, but when I found I could go, too, she ditched him. She'd rather go with me!"

He dashed out of the door triumphantly. "Ah!" said Jimmy's father, looking meaningfully at Jimmy's mother. "O-o-o-o-h!" breathed Jimmy's mother, gazing wide eyed at Jimmy's father.

"I believe your troubles are over," said Jimmy's father. "Jimmy has seen a girl on the horizon!"

REGIMENTAL COLORS IN PAWN

Odd Experiences of British Emblems Once Greatly Prized by Those Who Carried Them.

The discovery of the long lost colors of the old 50th regiment in the garden of Funtington house, near, Chichester, is a reminder of the strange fates that have befallen so many of these glorious military emblems, London. T. B. Bits remarks. The colors of the 51st foot—since disbanded—were captured by American plates during the war of Independence and hidden away in Ireland; the colors of the 20th regiment were deliberately burnt prior to the surrender at Saratoga to prevent their capture by the enemy.

At Bergen-op-Zoom the Royal Scots, to save their precious colors from falling into French hands, sank them deep in the river, though the enemy later fished them out; and when the second battalion of the 8th foot was disbanded at Portsmouth in 1816 the colors were cut into small pieces and distributed among the officers.

One of the colors of the 1st Northamptonshire regiment, which had been carried right through the peninsula campaign, was discovered some years ago in a pawn broker's shop, though how it got there is a mystery to this day. A similar uncertainty attaches to a pair of old colors of the 2d Border regiment, which were recovered from a London pawn broker, who was offering them for sale, by Lord Archibald Campbell in 1888.

Four years later four colors which had accompanied the Gloucester regiment in Egypt and in the peninsula were recovered from a York pawnbroker. It appeared that, having been bequeathed by an old colonel of the regiment to his son, they were ultimately secured by a servant, who, failing on evil times, pawned them for a few shillings.

SEVILLE STILL HAS CARMENS

Thousands of the Picturesque and Charming Cigarette Girls Are Employed There.

The most astonishing building in the Calle do San Fernando is the immense two story haroque edifice that covers more ground than the cathedral plus the court of oranges, and serves the purpose of a tobacco factory. The portal is adorned with busts of Columbus and Fernando Cortes, and I wish very much that we had had time to go inside and see these many cigarette girls at their work. As we passed I thought again of Carmen and the story of Bizet's fantastic Sevillian opera, for about 5,000 Carmens, or "cigareras," like Carmen, are employed in this factory, and attire themselves today in gay gowns and fascinating mantillas, with flowers tucked under their ears, and coquettishly placed in their hair, very much like the heroine of the opera. Like the opera, also, adjoining the factory are the artillery barracks, and one imagines it to be quite possible that some impressionable Don Jose should be fascinated by some of these piquant and Pretty Carmens.—From "Royal Spain of Today," by Mrs. Tryphosa Bates-Batcheller.

See Value of Exercise. There is no doubt but that exercise is a good thing for those who do not get it, but to many the daily use of dumb-bells, weights and similar apparatus grows irksome, the reason being a lack of stimulation owing to the fact that the person taking the exercise sees nothing accomplished as the result of the work and time spent.

Gladiators preferred to work at the woodpile, and here and there was the constantly maintained interest of seeing the pile increase after each period of action. The same has been accomplished in a real up-to-the-moment manner by a French inventor who has taken an exercising machine which is rather familiar in the shape of a bicycle on a permanent stand, and he has combined this with a storage battery. When the various members of the family are taking their daily exercise on this machine they are storing up current to be used in the form of illuminant after nightfall.

Architects Held to Account. It is unusual for a house, however small, to be erected in France without the service of an architect, who not only draws the plans, but actually superintends the work. Usually it is he who orders the building material and assures himself that its quality is up to specifications and requirements.

The contractor and his workmen perform their duties in conformity with the architect's orders, and the latter, who is usually a man of capital, advances the funds required in order that the contractor need not wait for payment until the building is completed. Moreover, the French law imposes on the architect a serious responsibility, since he, as well as the contractor, is responsible for all defects of construction during a period of ten years.

Lame-Sickness Caused by Plants. An investigation of the South African disease known as lamiektee, or lame-sickness, suggests that it is due to a special plant poison that is generated under abnormal conditions in grasses or other plants that are normally harmless. Its development seems to be associated with unusual weather and soil experiences, of which summer drought is important. Through such conditions willing would favor the formation of the poison, and this gives explanation for the common belief that the disease results from eating wilted plants.

To Break Up a Cold.

The hydropathic treatment of a cold in the head is more reliable than any other one which scarcely requires the aid of a physician. It is as follows:

In the morning, after rising and at night before retiring wash the feet and legs as high up as the knees in cold water, then rub them with a rough towel and massage them till the skin is red and glowing. In addition to this, sniff tepid water up the nose frequently during the day and sip with a teaspoon a glassful as hot as can be borne an hour before each meal and at bedtime. A few days is often quite sufficient for simple cases and obstinate ones yield if the treatment is prolonged. No medicines are required. If taken in the first stages of the disease a cold is broken up which might otherwise become a severe case of bronchitis lasting many days or weeks.

Rewards of Inventors.

It is not always the greatest invention that brings the largest financial rewards. Roller skates are said to have brought their inventor $3,000,000, while nearly half a million was realized by the man who first devised hoot laces. The inventor of the safety pin, who took the idea from a reproduction of a Pompeian fresco, says Les Nouvelles, made $10,000,000. On the other hand, Charles Bourseul, who discovered and described the principle of the telephone in 1855, died poor. Michaux, the inventor of the bicycle, ended his days in the utmost poverty, and Frederic Sauvage, who is credited with the invention of the screw propeller, was imprisoned and died bankrupt and insane.

Alabama's Iron Ore Deposits.

The boom which followed the discovery of the extensive deposits of iron ore in the vicinity of Birmingham, Alabama, in 1882, was without precedent in the industrial history of the United States, and the rush to Birmingham was paralleled only by the stampedes which followed such discoveries as the Comstock lode in Nevada and the Alaska gold fields. The iron ores of Alabama, while inferior in quality to those of Lake Superior, have the advantage of being near deposits of good coking coal and of the limestone requisite for fluxing, so that Birmingham, the Pittsburgh of the south, can manufacture pig iron cheaper than any other district of the world.

D. D. D. Opens New Era in Cure of Skin Disease

Professor Dudley's case of eczema was known to almost every hospital and physician of reputation throughout the state of Connecticut. His letter is another interesting demonstration of what is being done by the famous specific D. D. D. Prescription. "It may be of interest to you to know that your life-saving preparation, D. D. D. Prescription has been of incalculable value to me. I was covered with eczema from head to foot when I began using your remedies. I could get no relief, although I tried a thousand means. I applied but two bottles of the Prescription; a cure was effected in a very short time, in less than one month."—Prof. C. J. Dudley, South Lyme, Conn.

Ask any druggist today for D. D. D. Prescription. He'll tell you it always cures the itch instantly and soon there are signs of cure.

We have handled the remedy for years and regard it as the specific for skin troubles of all kinds. Come in or ask us about D. D. D. Prescription, also about D. D. D. soap especially for tender skins.

We offer the first full size bottle on the guarantee that unless it stops the itch at once, it costs you not a cent.
